

The Center for Transatlantic Relations, Johns Hopkins University-SAIS
EU Center of Excellence Washington DC

Invites you to:

Tunisia: Act Three The Challenge of Building Democracy

Wednesday, December 14, 2011

Room 500
10:00 am–12:00 pm

1717 Massachusetts Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20036

Moderator: Ambassador Kurt Volker, Senior Fellow and Managing Director,
Center for Transatlantic Relations

Speakers: Introductory Remarks: Islam and Democracy Seeking to Co-exist
Aude Jehan, French Embassy Fellow, Center for Transatlantic Relations

An Assessment of Election Results on a Geographical Basis
Francesco Martini, Visiting Research Associate, Center for Transatlantic
Relations

The First Steps of the New Tunisian Government
Alexis Arieff, Analyst in African and Middle East Affairs,
Congressional Research Service

Internal Security and Human Rights
Daniele Moro, Visiting Scholar, Center for Transatlantic Relations

The Condition of Women After the 'Jasmine Revolution'
Leile Chennoufi, Tunisian American Young Professionals

After the October 23rd elections and the November 22nd inauguration of the new Parliament, the first “Arab Spring” country now faces the challenges of making democracy work. Hear these transatlantic and Tunisian experts discuss critical aspects of the most promising democratic transition in the Arab world.

